NOT TAKEN IN. Fields, the Boston publisher, has a wonderful memory, and his knowledge of English literature is so available that when a friend wishes to know where any particular passage may be found, he steers at once for the corner and consults the man who is very likely to give the desired information. A pompous would-be wit not long ago, thinking to puzzle him and make sport for the company at dinner, informed them prior to Mr. F.'s arrival that he had himself that morning written some poetry, and intended to submit it to Mr. F. as Southey's and inquirein which of his poems the lines occurred. At the proper moment, therefore, after the guests were seated, he began, "Friend F., I have been a good deal exercised of late trying to find in Southey's Poems his well-known lines, running thus-can you tell us about what time he wrote them?" "I do not remember to have met with them before," replied Mr. F., "and there were only two periods in Southey's life

We are sorry to announce that Mr. Morphy, one of the most gifted members of the Spanish bar, has just died under circumsances somewhat singular. Mr. Morphy was celebrated for his knowledge of gastronomy, and was, perhaps, on account of his scientific appreciation of the "chefs d'ouvre" of the diplomatic kitchen, as well as his convivial talents and his power as a conversation man, a frequent guest of the former and present English Anbassadors, who, among other professional qualities, are au fait in the art of hospitality. It appears that some six or seven days ago, the unfortunate gentleman went to dine with Mr. Buchanan, the English Minister. He had put on a pair of boots tight beyond the usual power of endurance, and sat chatting with his host, who little dreamed of the voluntary martyrdom to which his witty 20 guest had subjected himself. Violent inflammation supervened, followed by gangrene, which carried the unfortunate gentleman to
